Missing 'Germ Murder' Witness Surrenders

APPEARS IN COURT TODAY FOR 'FIGHT'

White Tells Prosecutor There's More to It Than is Known

Chicago, June 12.—(AP)—Robert McMillan, an assistant state's attorney, was sent to Indianapolis, Ind., today to find out why Jerome Matile, wanted as a witness against William D. Shepherd, had not arrived in Chicago and telegraphed the state's attorney that he had Matile and would bring him here tonight.

Chicago, June 12.—(AP)—Robert White, long missing witness in the Shepherd trial unexpectedly walked into the court room this morning and reported to Joseph Savage, assistant state's attorney.

"Here I am, Mr. Savage," said White, who immediately was rushed to the office of the State's Attorney. He led his wife and two children as he appeared in the court room.

"I am here to fight this thing to a finish; there is more to it than you know," Savage said White had stated, as the doors were closed and a conference began.

Repeated Charges. After he had questioned White 30 minutes, Savage said White virtually had repeated charges he made in letters against W. W. O'Brien of Shepherd's defense, and Arthur E. Byrnes, investigator for O'Brien, and that he had fabricated an affidavit he made to O'Brien while in fear of his life.

White said he returned to Chicago a week ago and had been living in seclusion.

Savage said White also had introduced several new persons in his statement and that detectives had been sent to find them.

White probably would be taken before the grand jury this afternoon and his intimidations indicted, Savage added.

DEFENSE LAWYER BITTER. Chicago, June 12.—(AP)—Although nearly every point raised by counsel for William D. Shepherd was decided against him yesterday at the opening of the trial proper, of Shepherd for the murder of his millionaire ward William M. McCintock, the defense attorneys were determined today to continue to contest every line of prosecution testimony and every phase of the state's attack.

W. S. Stewart, chief defense counsel, and W. W. O'Brien, his partner, although overruled on several objections, were successful in preventing Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal court from giving any important testimony and they were hopeful that today's session would hold for them added legal victories.

Appealed to Court. Testimony of Alexander Reichman, co-guardian with Mrs. Julie Shepherd of William McCintock, was resumed when court got underway today. The witness was so bitterly assailed by Defense Attorney Steward that he appealed several times for the protection of the court against the "insinuations." State's Attorney Crowe made many objections to the line of cross questioning, maintaining that Reichman was one of the foremost members of the Chicago Bar. He also referred to the defense attorney as one who had become opulent through sharp practices.

Admits He Lied. Pittsburgh, Pa., June 12.—(AP)—Maintaining for several hours he was Robert White, missing witness in the Shepherd case at Chicago, Frank Laros told Inspector of Detectives John Barry today that he had lied about it. Held on a forgery and false pretense charge, he maintained that he was White until confronted with news from Chicago to the effect that White has appeared in court there.

Laros said, however, that was associated with White while the latter was in Pittsburgh early in June. He said he sent a number of telegrams and made several telephone calls to Chicago for White.

When asked by Inspector Barry why he had claimed to be White, Laros said, "These newspaper men were insisting that I was White, and I thought I had better say I was because I feared a beating."

MINISTERS AND FAMILIES WILL PICNIC MONDAY

Sky Pilots of Section to Enjoy Day at Lowell Park

Secretary Baldwin of the Sterling Y. M. C. A., who is also Secretary of the Twin Cities Ministerial Association, in co-operation with the Rev. F. Brandt, President of the Dixon Ministers' group, has arranged for a union picnic of ministers and their families, at Lowell Park, next Monday. Neighboring pastors at Franklin Grove, Nachusa, Ashton, Amboy, Harmon and Polo have been included, and a high time is expected. Sterling-Rock Falls divides have challenged the remainder for supremacy in base ball, and volley ball and horse shoe champions are to be determined.

The fellowship frolic Monday will complete the joint program decided upon by the two associations last autumn. Joint program-meetings have been held in the respective cities, and a very pleasant and profitable acquaintance has ensued. The previous get-togethers did not include the ladies of the manse, so that the Lowell Park gathering will in that respect nicely supplement and perfect the year's interchange of thought and social intercourse.

Wells Going Dry in So. Illinois, Reports Today

Chicago, June 12.—(AP)—Wells are going dry and water is becoming scarce in southern Illinois, where hot, dry weather continues, according to a report from A. P. Leeper, manager of the Illinois Fruit Exchange, received by the Illinois Agricultural Association today.

CROP PROSPECTS ILLINOIS PAINTED BLACK BY EXPERT

Federal Statistician at the Capital Gives Out Adverse Report

Springfield, Ill., June 12.—(AP)—With the exception of corn, the general crop prospect in Illinois has been reduced below the average by the prolonged drought, according to the June 1 crop report of the federal statistician, A. J. Surratt.

"The condition of oats, hay and pastures are among the lowest on record for June 1," the report said. "The severe freeze on May 24 contributed to the lowered crop conditions, especially in the central northern area, by causing spotted damage to wheat, fruit and gardens and setting growth back. Crop conditions are spotted and typical of a dry season in nearly all localities with the better farmed lands showing up to advantage as a rule. Rains are badly needed for all crops."

Wheat Poor to Fair.

"Wheat conditions has held up fairly well in most of the lower five rows of counties and in more northern and upper west central counties of the state. Over much of the important wheat belt in the central and lower central area conditions range from poor to fair. In the important oats area in the upper west central and northern counties the oats prospect could be materially improved if that district is relieved by good rains soon. In most of the remainder of the state, the oats prospect is poor—extremely poor in the central, east central and lower east central areas."

"Barley acreage shows little change from last year. The conditions of 80 on the state acreage of 246,000 acres indicates a state production of 7,170,000 bushels compared with 7,751,000 a year ago."

"Rye conditions at 80 percent places the state production outlook at 2,232,000 bushels compared with 2,580,000 bushels last year."

Hay Acreage Lower.

"Illinois tame hay acreage shows a decrease of about five percent from last season with the state acreage placed at 3,478,000 acres. Hay prospects one of the poorest on record. State condition at 66 indicates a possible production of 3,627,000 tons compared with 5,511,000 tons last year."

"Illinois fruit prospect is below average. Apple condition reports indicate slightly less than half a crop in the northern half or non-commercial part of the state and approximately two thirds of a crop in the southern half. Peaches are a fair crop in the more southern counties, but a poor crop elsewhere. State pear crop prospect also is light."

"The condition of other crops with their ten year averages given in parentheses are as follows: Pasture 68 (60); Clover 67 (68); Alfalfa 62 (60); Blackberries 62 (60). The condition of timothy is reported at 63 compared with 83 per cent a year ago."

"The farm labor supply is reported to be as ample to a surplus as a rule."

Ashton Motorist Given Stiff Fine by Co. Judge

Fred Reinhart of Ashton was fined $150 and costs by County Judge William L. Leach in the county court yesterday afternoon on a charge of driving an automobile while in an intoxicated condition. Reinhart was arrested in Ashton Wednesday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Fred Richardson, after he had driven over the curbing on the Lincoln Highway and crashed into a steel lamp post, breaking it down and damaging his car.

Bates Buys Interest in Grocery-Filling Station

Arthur Shuck of Shuck Brothers grocery and oil station, Lincoln Way and Everett St., has sold his interest in this well-established business to his brother-in-law, Wilbur Bates, who has been employed in the grocery business in Dixon for the past ten years. The new firm will be Paul Shuck and Wilbur Bates. Arthur and his family will take an extended auto trip this summer before he again enters business.

POSSES SEARCH FOR ROBBER IN "LITTLE EGYPT"

Kentucky Bank Robber Flees Across Ohio Into Illinois

Carrsville, Ky., June 12.—(AP)—Posses pushed across the Ohio river into Illinois today in search of a man known as McGowan of St. Louis after wounding and capturing W. D. Stone, a farmer of near Marion, Ky., and recovering the $16,300 in cash and liberty bonds the two men are alleged to have taken when they robbed the Bank of Carrsville yesterday. Stone was captured last night after an exchange of shots in which he and Bradley Crittenden, a posseman, were wounded slightly. Stone was taken to jail at Smithland. Bank officials have identified him.

McGowan's clothing was found on the river bank this morning leading officers to believe he escaped injury in the shooting and swam across the river. Pope county, Illinois, officials joined in the chase today.

Miss Edith Missman is Called Early this Morn

Miss Edith Missman passed away at her home, 604 South Peoria avenue this morning shortly after 2 o'clock, death resulting from a long illness. Funeral services will be conducted Sunday afternoon at 2:30 from the residence, Rev. D. P. Heltzel, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church officiating, and the remains will be laid to rest in the Oakwood Memorial mausoleum. The complete obituary will be published later.

Change Polling Places of Two Dixon Precincts

A new voting precinct was established at the closing session of the county board yesterday afternoon. The first precinct voting place, which has been located at Elmer Uni's carpenter shop on East River street, is discontinued and is now at the Black Hawk hotel, where the second precinct has been housed for some time. The second precinct polling place has been relocated at the Nettz & Company garage.

TWO CHARGED WITH SLAYING AGED RECLUSE

Accused of Forcing Old Hermit to Take Poison

Centuria, Ill., June 12.—(AP)—A coroner's jury investigating the mysterious death of Thomas Ingram, 72-year-old recluse living alone two miles east of Salem, county seat of Marion county, late last night returned a verdict to the effect that the deceased came to his death from a beating and poison forcibly administered by Jesse Page, 45, and Russell Townsend, 26, both residents of Salem, and ordered the two men held without bond on charges of causing Ingram's death. The two suspects have left the community of Salem and authorities are endeavoring to locate them.

Ingram was found in a semi-conscious condition at his home early Thursday by a resident of Salem and was taken by him into the city, where he lingered for several hours, during periods of consciousness, telling a story of beatings by the two men whom he named, and describing how they accused him of "snitching" on them, finally forcing him to drink a quantity of liquid after he had refused to drink.

Dixon Women Hurt in Auto Accident

What is reported to have been a case of reckless driving on the new route 26 paving about three miles south of Polo last evening about 7:30 resulted in a serious accident which might have proved fatal to some of the innocent parties or to the participants. Mrs. and Mrs. L. E. Jacobson and Mrs. H. H. Heinz of this city were driving north toward Polo when a Ford coupe owned by Leonard Kroff of Sterling and driven by his son, crashed into the rear of their machine. Both of the ladies suffered scalp wounds and were taken to the Dixon hospital where stitches were required to close the cuts.

Young Kroff and his companion, Harold Gifford, both of Sterling, were painfully injured. Gifford was the recipient of a deep cut over the eye and other cuts and bruises about the body. Kroff sustained bruises about the body and head and had several teeth knocked out. Both of the young men were taken to Polo where they were given medical attention.

It is said that the Kroff car and another machine were going toward Polo, running abreast and at a good rate of speed and that when about to pass the Jacobson car, another machine was sighted coming in the opposite direction and in an effort to avoid a terrible crash, in which the four car might be wrecked, the Sterling young man attempted to regain his side of the road and in doing so crashed into the Jacobson car. Kroff's car was badly damaged as was the Dixon machine.

TORRENTS AND WINDS IN IOWA CAUSED DAMAGE

Severe Storms During Night in Several Parts of State

BULLETIN

Mason City, Iowa June 12.—(AP)—The crew of a Chicago Great Western train brought a report here today that Alexander a town in Franklin County had virtually been wiped out by a tornado late yesterday. A score of persons were said to have been injured.

BULLETIN

Latimer Iowa, June 12.—(AP)—A tornado struck Alexander Iowa, last night, wrecked or damaged at least 25 houses and blew a Minneapolis & St. Louis mixed freight and passenger train from the tracks.

Des Moines, Ia., June 12.—(AP)—Torrential rains and scattered wind storms last night caused heavy property loss and injury to at least five persons in Iowa, it was disclosed today when communication was re-established with most of the areas known to have been affected.

So far as could be learned up to noon, there was no loss of life although a report was current that storm struck Alexander, Ia., with fatal results.

Rainfall throughout the northern counties reached the proportions of a cloudburst, Charles City reporting the precipitation at five inches which exceeds the total rainfall of the year.

Rain and hail caused damage to growing crops, according to the reports.

Pal Moore and Sarmiento in Feature Bout Tonight

Chicago, June 12.—(AP)—Pal Moore, Memphis bantam, will box Pete Sarmiento, Philippine 120 pounder, in a ten round contest in the open air arena at Aurora tonight. In another ten round bout Mike Ballerino, junior lightweight champion will meet Frankie Schaefer of Chicago at 132 pounds.

Injured Dixon Boy Home from Sterling Hospital

Clifford Buzzard, who was injured severely in an automobile accident at the Sterling auto race track Sunday, May 24, was brought home from the Sterling hospital yesterday afternoon. He has not entirely recovered from his injuries, but his condition is considered quite favorable.

Seventy-one Houses Under Construction in Dixon at Present

A survey, completed by the Dixon Association of Commerce, and announced in the current bulletin shows that there are at present seventy-one houses under construction in Dixon. In addition to the new City National Bank and G. J. Downing buildings. The Chamber says this is more building than has ever been going on at one time in the history of Dixon, and speaks volumes for the conditions of affairs in the city. This number does not include minor changes or small additions being made to residences. Dixon is growing and there is always a demand for homes.

SUPERVISORS TOLD AMOUNT IS ESSENTIAL

State's Attorney Keller Made Plea Before County "Dads"

State's Attorney Mark C. Keller appeared before the board of supervisors in their final session of the June term yesterday afternoon and made a plea for an appropriation of sufficient size to aid in the enforcement of the prohibition law in Lee county. In making his request for an annual appropriation of $3,000 to be used for this purpose, the county prosecutor outlined briefly some of the work that has been done by his office and the office of the sheriff in the past year.

"There has been no complaint against the enforcement of the prohibition law in Lee county, but that which has come from those who have been sent to jail or fined heavily for its violation," the state's attorney said in opening his remarks. He followed with a brief explanation of decisions of members of the Illinois Supreme Court, which has materially hampered the local county officials in carrying out the work of cleaning up bootleggers.

Wants All of Amount

"This county board of supervisors of Lee county has the power to lend assistance to the sheriff and state's attorney in the enforcement of this law. I am asking this body of supervisors to appoint $3,000 to carry on this work in Lee county. I am not asking for $10,000 with the expectation of receiving one-third of the amount but for $3,000 and I want all of this amount."

"The 1924 records of the office of the state's attorney show that 238 cases were taken into court and with but two acquittals. The sheriff's office did the work on all of the 238 cases and established this record. In the four years of my first term in office, the records of my office show that $20,000 was collected and turned over to the county treasurer from liquor fines. After expenses of my office were deducted, this amount went into the distributive fund for schools of the county."

$500 Unl'l September

Supervisor Clayton of Dixon presented a motion in which he sought to have the sum of $500 appropriated for the purpose as outlined by State's Attorney Keller, which action met with the unanimous approval of the board. It was indicated that a sum would be appropriated for this purpose at the September meeting of the board when the budget is made up.

The closing session yesterday afternoon was more in the form of a school of instruction for many of the new members of the board and enlightened some of the holdover members. After State's Attorney Mark C. Keller had talked to the board, Sheriff E. C. Hiseley made a short talk and was followed by County Judge William L. Leach, who told the supervisors of the impositions on the mother's pension law in Lee county. In presenting this matter to the board Judge Leach said:

On Mothers Pension

"The mother's pension law is one of the best acts on the statute books of Illinois and it can be one of the most abused acts on the statute books. I personally know of cases in Lee county where mother's pensions are being paid that are far from deserving. In this connection, let me call your attention to one case that has recently come to my attention. A mother of a child was receiving $15 monthly for the care of her child and investigation showed that she had had nothing to do with the child for months and that it was cared for and provided for by its grandparents. This pension I cancelled after having investigated the case."

"Another instance of a woman in Amboy who is receiving $30 monthly from Lee county, who has secured a divorce from her husband. It might be construed by some women to be a more profitable act to get rid of their husbands and secure a mother's pension. In another instance which has come to my attention in the last few days, a woman came to my office and applied for a mother's pension. She told me that she had been living in Rock Falls, I told her to go to Whiteside county and make application. She informed me that she had tried this and had been rejected and intended moving back into Lee county for the sole purpose of securing this money. I advised her that she would have to reside here three consecutive years before her claim would be entertained. These are only a few instances that have been brought to my attention during the short time that I have held the office of county judge."

Some Applications Waiting

"I have cited these instances to you to show that the mother's pension act is being abused in Lee county. At

100-HOO—
(By Hal Cochran.)

Yoo-Hoo there, Tommy and Willie and Jim, what say we go for a coolin' off swim. Let's call our baseball game off for today and grab up our suits and be right on our way.

Member the place down by Farmer Jones' shed? The water in clear and it's over yer head. Let's fix a spring board as soon's we arrive. Come on, kids, I'll show ya the right way to dive.

Anyone here got a watch that is right. I gotta be home for my supper tonight. Gee, Mom gets mad when I'm late for my meals and I don't want a lickin'; I know how it feels.

Look out for glass—you'll be cuttin' yer toes. Let's all agree not to knot up our cloths. Four healthy splashes with nary a wait. Four voices shout, "Gee, the water is great."

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS—
Tempting to the Eye.

In preparing salads remember to tempt the eye as well as the appetite. Watch the color combinations as well as the fruit or vegetable ingredients.

That Mushy Look.
Never let salads stand long after preparing them. Nothing should be wilted or mushy looking.

Always Rinse Brushes.
Always rinse your scrubbing brushes after each using and dry them in the sun, bristles down.

JOHN COOLIDGE GUEST AT GOV. TRUMBULL'S HOME—
New York, June 12.—(AP)—A Hartford dispatch in today's New York Times says:

"John Coolidge, the President's son, is the guest of Governor Jonathan Trumbull of Connecticut. He has been at the Governor's home in Plainville for three days.

"The President's son met Jean Trumbull, the Governor's daughter, on the way to the presidential inauguration on March 4, when the Governor's party and young Coolidge travelled in the same Pullman car.

"Miss Trumbull is a student at Mount Holyoke, while Coolidge is an under graduate at Amherst, only a few miles distant. The young people have seen each other several times since the inauguration.

Menus for Family

Tested by C. SISTER MARY

Breakfast—Orange juice with mint, cereal, thin cream, waffles, maple sirup, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Stuffed baked potato, lettuce sandwiches, fresh strawberries, sponge cake, milk, tea.

Dinner—Fricasee of lamb, steamed and buttered rice, creamed new carrots, tomato cream salad, Parker House rolls, crisp toast, junket cream pudding with fresh raspberries, milk, coffee.

The baked potatoes are scooped out after baking, each shell filled with an egg, 1 tablespoon flaked crab meat or freshened salt codfish, topped with the potato pulp well seasoned and mashed and beaten until very light and put into a hot oven to brown the potato and cook the egg.

This day's menu offers a suggestion for the food problem if a house guest is being entertained. The dishes suggested for the entire day are not elaborate or too expensive but are a bit out of the ordinary and quite delicious.

Tomato Cream Salad
One quart canned tomatoes, 1/2 onion, coarse leaves from 2 blades of celery, 2 large sprigs parsley, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, 2 whole cloves, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 1/2 teaspoon paprika, 1 1/2 cups whipping cream.

Combine tomatoes, onion, celery, parsley, salt, sugar, cloves and pepper and simmer thirty minutes. Rub through a sieve. There should be from 1 to 1 1/2 cups of thick puree. Stir in paprika and chill. Whip cream until stiff and fold into tomato puree. Turn into a mold and let stand for three hours packed in three parts ice to one of salt. Remove from mold and cut in slices to serve. Serve on hearts of lettuce with French dressing.

THE SUN AND AIR GOOD FOR ALL OF US—

London, June 12.—(AP)—In view of the low cut neck effect, short skirts and spiderweb stockings which are now the mode, girls have a better chance for health than boys, who usually wear too much clothing, in the opinion of Dr. Leonard Hill of the National Institute of Medical Research.

Because of these lads women and girls permit more of the ultra violet rays to enter their bodies and if the fashion continues, he avers, it is probable that statistics will eventually show that they are the healthier of the two sexes.

"I have no doubt," says Dr. Hill, "that in the near future both men's and women's clothing will be designed with a view to allowing the body to receive as plentiful a supply as possible of the sun's rays."

Embroidery in Bright Colors

The lines to this gown of white georgette crepe are simple enough, but the wide band of wool embroidery in bright colors and the fringed hemline make it very striking and unusual. A scarf of black illusion makes the oriental looking turban, one end of which is wound about the throat and falls over the shoulder.

CYNTHIA GREY SAYS: THE QUEEN BECOMES A FLAPPER—

Feisal, the king of Mesopotamia, had the shock of his royal life the other day.

His queen came to visit him in the city of Bagdad. And she had cast aside the garments of modesty that all nice, demure oriental women wear; and had arrayed herself in the short skirts and choker beads of the modern flapper.

Now it so happened that Feisal, the king, had left his wife under the protection of her father in Mosul . . . and he had told her to stay there while he was in Bagdad.

Moreover, he had expected her to stay there. For in the orient, wives do not do as they please, but as they are told. . . . At least that is the supposition.

However, the queen Mesopotamia had plans of her own.

The minute her husband's kingly back was turned she summoned her English friend, Miss Gertrude Bell, and asked her to go shopping with her for some new cloths.

And by the time they had finished, King Feisal's wife looked like almost anybody but queen of Mesopotamia! "Now then," she asked, "I'm off to Bagdad!"

In Mesopotamia wives do not go to join their husbands when they are away on business trips, as they sometimes do in America. It simply isn't done, there.

Probably the last time a queen went calling upon a king in those distant places of the earth was back in the times of Sheba and King Solomon.

But a mere trifle like that didn't worry the queen of Mesopotamia for a second.

She packed up her brand new clothes, and started off on her trip.

And when she faced her astounded mate in Bagdad, she cheerfully explained that so long as Mesopotamian men have adopted western clothes and habits, there was no good reason why the women shouldn't! . . . To which, of course, there was no answer.

All of which reminds me that Zane Grey, the novelist, says that men have been making women obey them for 500,000 years . . . and that women are at last rebelling.

It almost begins to look that way, doesn't it? In far-away Mesopotamia, the women are walking out of the harem, and down in Patagonia they are doing the warring and the law-making while the men stay at home to care for the babies.

It makes one pause to wonder in what state of mind the explorer, MacMillan, will find the polar Eskimo women, when he returns to that frozen country of theirs this summer.

Club Has Annual Children's Program

The annual Children's Day meeting of the South Dixon Community club was held Wednesday afternoon, June 3rd, at the home of Mrs. Noah Beard.

Decorations were of roses and peonies and potted plants.

There was roll call and the minutes of the last meeting. After the brief business meeting the following program was given:

Piano Solo—Dorothy Beard.
Greeting—Vivian Wolfram.
Recitation, Brother Wind—Helen Travis.

Piano Solo—Arletta Downing.
Recitation, Self—Arlene Wolfram.
Recitation—Elwood Travis.

GIVES DIPHTHERIA WARNING.

Dr. Rawlings, state health inspector, is out with a warning against an epidemic of diphtheria, which he considers quite possible early in the fall, basing his opinion on the deficiency in rainfall. There was such a deficiency in Illinois last year, and in the first four months of this year the deficiency has been 3½ inches. Medical men of sound judgment, he says, hold that there is an ill-favored relation between diphtheria and dryness. There was but little diphtheria last year and the year before, consequently he figures that the number of children now susceptible is large. He says that right now is the most opportune time of year to immunize children against diphtheria with toxin-antitoxin, as it takes several months after injection to establish full immunity. Such immunity, if it does not protect one for life, will at least prevent diphtheria during the first ten years when danger is greatest. The state furnishes toxin-antitoxin gratuitously. Doctors may get it for the asking, the only requirement being that twenty or more immunizations be arranged for at one time. Parents of children, especially those under 8 years old, would do well to keep this warning in mind.

NEAR EAST RELIEF A GREAT PHILANTHROPY.

Philanthropic people will be interested in a new circular gotten out by Near East Relief, in which it is stated that this organization is now caring for 38,000 children in thirty-nine orphanages. More than a million people are living in that section of the world today who owe their lives to the activities of Near East Relief, the circular states. Reports to congress show that during the last seven years overhead expense has been kept within 6 percent. "As a matter of fact," says the circular, "for every dollar America gives to the support and education of orphans in Near East Relief orphanages, the organization spends at least $1.50 for the work, made possible by the skill of the organization in securing valuable concessions from the governments, including thousands of acres of ground, free transportation, buildings, etc., together with a large amount of volunteer service." Near East Relief is concededly a leading organization of its philanthropic character in all the world.

SLOGAN BROUGHT RESULTS.

You would imagine that the American public had been "sloganned" to the point of rebellion against all slogans. But the Illinois Agricultural Association declares in an official bulletin that its "Spread your butter thicker" and "There is no substitute for butter," have had the effect of reducing the butter surplus and putting the industry in a better condition.

The bulletin says the heavy surplus of last fall and winter has disappeared and that butter consumption has increased steadily in the last four months over what it was a year ago.

Another item which pleases the milk producers is that the current price received for farmers for butter fat is four cents more than it averaged for any month of May in the last four years.

The association had 10,000 "Spread your butter thicker" posters distributed over Illinois. Not a great number for so large and populous a state. Nevertheless the results speak for themselves—that cashing in by Illinois farmers of an extra quarter of a million dollars on their cream this month.

FOOLISH.

You know, from your extensive reading, that enormous amounts of eggs are imported into our country from China. Department of Agriculture says that just as many American eggs are exported, even more. So the in-out transactions practically balance.

What a fool economic procedure, to haul eggs clear across the Pacific and then ship away an equal number from our own farms!

ALCOHOL.

You could run your auto with alcohol instead of gasoline. But alcohol costs an average of 75 cents a gallon. Obviously, 75 cents is the top-notch price beyond which "gas" cannot rise, since motorists would turn to alcohol.

Gradually we are building up an intricate system of checks and balances. Substitutes in time may hold the cost of living within bounds.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK PROMISING.

"There is no boom, nor a sign of one, but industry is in excellent shape, with steady demand and steady production in prospect. The fundamental situation is so strong that there is not the slightest reason for discouragement. The work situation is good and the outlook everywhere is extremely promising."—Elbert H. Gary.

Give Chicago its claim to "representation according to population," give up all attempt to amend the state constitution, and one result would be to give the wet control of the Illinois legislature at once. The search and seizure law repeal, which failed to carry in the house at Springfield, would go through with a whoop. Isn't this the real animus behind the Chicago Tribune's fight for "Chicago's right?" Wet control of the legislature would come at once, though Chicago domination might have to wait a few years.

College publications are charged with "mental measles." Their stuff is rash, anyway.

The California church that put on a three-days' relay stunt of reading the whole Bible through in continuous session should have checked the flow of words for a moment at the text, "Use not vain repetitions, as the heathen do: for they think that they shall be heard for their much speaking."

What is the Bible that its mere words should thus be made a fetish of?

There are Tibetan lamasaries that incense day and night their version of the Buddhist scriptures, in a language which the celebrants themselves do not understand.

There are Mohammedan schools whose entire instruction consists of singing the Koran, in an ancient dialect.

The Vedic hymns and Sanskrit epics were handed down for ages by the same process. To these peoples, the text itself, irrespective of meaning, has a magical value.

If the Bible is that sort of a book, that is the way to treat it. Evidently there are those who think so.

LET U. S. HANDLE ALL INHERITANCE TAXES

Florida is bidding for the legal residence of persons of wealth.

First it abolished the inheritance tax, and now it is proposed to make anybody a citizen of the state by affidavit and the establishment of a technical residence.

It will be nearly as easy as the establishment of a divorce residence in Nevada. And the motive, in both cases, is of course the same. It is a bid for trade.

Uniformity of divorce laws, to meet the Nevada situation, is not likely. But why not uniformity of inheritance tax laws?

States ought not to compete with each other in such taxes, and the national government ought not to duplicate them.

The simplest way would be for the states to go out of the field entirely, leaving it for the national government to assess a uniform tax, and then divide it with the states.

THE MOST DANGEROUS

"BEAST" OF ALL.

The Gorgas memorial fund announces a nationwide campaign against mosquitoes. Sooner or later, that campaign will become a world crusade—perhaps one of the major activities of the future League of Nations.

For mosquitoes are the most dangerous, as well as the most blood-thirsty, of the wild beasts left on earth.

Bears and wolves are little more than children's bogaboos; lions and tigers are interesting sport, and even snakes, outside of India, kill scarcely more people than lightning.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWIN

"What is this boat worth?" he would guess.

"What kind of a story would you like to hear next?" asked Mi O' Mi, the Story Teller.

"Tell us about more fairies," said Nancy.

"All right," said Mi O' Mi, "but the story I was thinking about has fairies in it whom no one can see and no one suspects of being around. Fairies who play us tricks or fairies who do us good. See if you can guess what kind of fairies I mean when I have finished my story."

The Twins sat very still and Mi O' Mi began:

"Once upon a time there was a poor fisherman. He was a Chinese fisherman and very, very poor. He didn't fish just to sell to the market and so have enough money for his other wants, but he fished to get enough food to keep him and his family alive. Summer and winter they lived on fish, and once in a while a little rice, which the fisherman got at the market when he had had an extra good day and could trade the herring he did not need.

"The Chinaman put on a coat made of straw to keep the rain off, then he would wade out into the sea and stand silently for hours. He was too poor to even afford a boat.

"Many boats passed him—all sorts of boats, but most of them filled with oyster shells.

"The poor fisherman knew that there were fortunes in these boats, for the oysters they were filled with were not ordinary oysters. They were pearl oysters.

"Beyond the place where the fisherman stood every day was a place where men put on diver's suits and dived into deep water and brought up buckets of oyster shells. These were taken to shore, opened and examined carefully for the precious jewels.

"You know, my dears," said Mi O' Mi, "that that is where these gems are found, in oyster shells at the bottom of the sea.

"Well, the poor fisherman got to figuring as the pearl boats passed him.

"What is this boat worth?" he would guess. "Perhaps a hundred yen—or perhaps a million yen. Who knows? At any rate, it must be a great fortune."

"Then he took to figuring how large the pearls might be. 'Perhaps in yonder boat is a pearl as large as a pigeon's egg,' he would say. 'It may be set in the middle of the Emperor's crown.'

"No one noticed the poor fisherman in his funny straw hat like a sharp mushroom, or his funny straw coat like a bundle of hay baled for market.

"So he fished on for his herring and dreamed thoughts of pearls. And then one day the poor Chinaman had an adventure."

"What was it?" asked the Twins excitedly. "Did a boat run into him?"

Mi O' Mi shook his head. "No, that's the queer part of it," he said. "After spending almost all of his waking hours in the water, the poor fisherman had an adventure on the land. It happened one day when he had caught four extra herring and was taking them to market to exchange for a bowlful of rice grains."

"The Chinaman passed a jeweler's stall on his way. Now he had passed this jeweler's stall many times without stopping. But today a sudden thought popped into his head and he stood still."

Kills Pesky Bed-Bugs P. D. Q.

Just think, a 35c box of P. D. Q. (Pokey Devil's Quinine), makes a quart, enough to kill a million bedbugs, roaches, fleas or moths of any future generations by killing the eggs and does not injure the clothing.

Liquid fire to the bedbugs is what P. D. Q. is like, bedbugs stand as good a chance as a snowball in a justly famed heat resort. Patent spray free in every package of P. D. rules on the stage this season and she is still in her teens. Saw Willie Howe, the comedian, and he tells me he is planning to produce a play written by a negro doorman. Saw Ina Claire, the lovely and much wronged heroine of many a polite play. She began her career at $40 a week, appearing four times a day in music halls. Now she is going into vaudeville and will receive $300 a week, so I am told, for appearing twice a day. Saw Roger Wolfe Kahn, the saxophonist son of Otto Kahn, the banker. The young fellow is now composing a musical comedy for which his father will probably stand sponsor and angel. Saw Ernest Boyd, man of letters, and with his beard, mustache and long hair he appears as distinguished as Charles Evans Hughes. Saw John Emerson and Anita Loos, famous husband-and-wife team of scenario writers, and they say they sail soon for Europe. Saw James Stephens, the Gaelic poet, and he has the detached, wistful bearing that one expects to see in a poet. Saw Constance Bennett, one of the most sprightly figures in Gotham's night life, and Owen Moore, once one of the most glamorous figures of the screen, but now almost forgotten.

This is the season when the aspiring musician is given opportunity for a public debut. Rentals of concert hall are considerably lower than during the crowded winter season when as much as $500 is asked for the use of a hall on an off-afternoon. Since unknown singers do not attract paying audiences tickets are given to almost anyone who will attend. One management recognizing the demand for a low-rental hall for "first appearances," has built an auditorium seating 800. Since it rents for only $85 it is a great demand.

New York — See-sawing up and down Broadway I saw Dorothy Francis, prima Donna in comic opera. When not singing she is designing costumes for various productions. Saw Beatrice Burton, who wrote "The Flapper Wife" and charming enough is she to be herself heroine of a delightful story. Saw Augustus Thomas, dean of American playwrights, and he reminds me somehow of a Methodist bishop. Saw Sylvia Field, a winsome miss who has played two leading

The most distraught person in New York is the home-seeker. Leases begin and end October 1. But everyone cannot arrange to arrive in New York on that date, or to begin housekeeping then. And so they pound the pavements on Sunday afternoon and on week days after work. I know of several instances in which men who came here for new positions wired their families to remain in the old home town, that they were returning because they could find no suitable place to live. Ground was broken for an 80-family house on Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, four weeks ago. Before the structure had reached the first floor every apartment had been leased, tenants making their selections from a floor plan.

This is the season when rehearsals begin for shows which open next season. Many long weeks are required to whip a musical comedy or revue into shape for presentation. Almost every meeting hall in town is being used for rehearsals of dancing. Just off Times Square there is an empty store-room with a big "For Rent" sign across the window. Prospective tenants are much surprised when they walk in to find a man at a piano pounding out tunes for dancing girls in rompers. Another company is rehearsing in an empty loft.

Telegram From Richard Summers to John Alden Prescott.

Papers here carried story of big robbery and perhaps murder at your home. Says Leslie is prostrated from the shock. Have kept news so far from Bee, as she is in a very precarious condition mentally. Wire me immediately so that I can tell her before she hears the other side.

DICK SUMMERS. Note From Mrs. John Alden Prescott to Melville Sartoris.

My Dear Mr. Sartoris: Mr. Prescott and I thank you so much for your kind inquiries. Nothing has been found yet either of Miss Ellington or Mr. Carton. The jewels of course are still gone, but that is a secondary matter.

I am afraid the papers made me out in a more precarious condition than I am but I appreciate most sincerely your solicitude.

It seems such a long while ago that I danced that tango. So many things have happened since. If you should come to Pittsburg, both Mr. Prescott and myself would feel much hurt if we did not see you. Sincerely, LESLIE PRESCOTT.

Telegram From John Alden Prescott to Richard Summers.

Miss Ellington and Mr. Carton still mysteriously missing. Leslie's jewels not found yet. Police up in the air. Leslie perfectly well, however, although worried over Zoe and Syd. Tell Bee she must name the boy after me and not to worry over us. Little Jack and the baby as fat and cunning as can be. Regards,

JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT. Telegram From Paula Perier to John Alden Prescott.

I am so worried about Leslie and Little Jack. Have just read account of Leslie losing her pearls and Syd and Sydney and a Miss Ellington are missing. Wire me immediately about Leslie and Little Jack. Shall await news with impatience. Address me care of Lyola Studio.

FABLES ON HEALTH

Corned beef and cabbage, a popular dish, especially with the comic strip men, is a very poor combination.

Because the cabbage is cooked with the fatty meat juices is extremely difficult to digest.

Cabbage properly cooked is delicious and a food to be set before a king. But often it is the victim of bad cooking.

Cabbage is best in the raw state. It is easier to digest, and also the oils and vitamins are not destroyed.

So far as proteins, fats and carbohydrates are concerned, cabbage is worth very little.

Its great value as a food lies in its ability to supply bulk to the intestines, for the indigestible residue acts as a stimulus to intestinal movement and helps in correcting constipation.

Cabbage is rich in sulphur and hydrogen. When cabbage is cooked these are driven out. That is where the odor from cooking cabbage comes from. For this reason alone cabbage should not be cooked.

Taking sun baths is one of the best preventives of rickets and malnutrition and the prevention of these diseases offset the development of many other ailments. Sun baths to be most effective must consist of sun rays coming into direct contact with the body. That means no clothing and no glass to penetrate. The valuable short or ultra-violet rays do not penetrate glass and even dust, clouds and smoke prevent them from reaching the surface of the earth.

Reset Day for Argument of Small's Civil Suit

Springfield, Ill., June 11.—(AP)—The supreme court today granted the motion of the attorney general resetting the date of the Len Small civil suit, placing it at the foot of the docket where it will be called June 17.

The court also granted the motion to allow oral argument and has allotted three hours time to each side for arguments.

Get More Mileage by Using Red Crown

The High-Grade Gasoline

Red Crown gives more miles per gallon. This is proved conclusively by stringent road tests, and by the expense records of thousands of companies and individual motorists.

Evidence of the superiority of Red Crown is ever-present. Continually letters from garages and service stations are sent in, reading as follows:

"My customers find that Red Crown gives more power and mileage than any other gasoline."

"My customers state that Red Crown gives them the most mileage."

"My boarders have found that Red Crown gives more mileage than other gasoline."

Use Red Crown all the time and gain the extra mileage and a substantial saving from lower upkeep cost, reduced repair bills, lower depreciation charges.

Red Crown guarantees more power and more ground covered per gallon. It has a complete unbroken chain of boiling point fractions. It vaporizes to the last drop.

Red Crown power never lapses or hesitates either on boulevards, bad roads or mountain grades. Fill up with Red Crown and save money.

CHAPTER X—Continued

The moment we attempted to retreat the circle closed in upon us, until the tips of the wings of those nearest to us nearly touched our faces. We beat at them with the stocks of our guns, but there was nothing solid or vulnerable to strike. Then suddenly out of the whirling, slate-colored circle a long neck shot out, and a fierce beak made a thrust at us. Another and another followed. Summerlee gave a cry and put his hand to his face, from which the blood was streaming. I felt a prod at the back of my neck, and turned dizzy with the shock. Challenger fell, and as I stooped to pick him up I was again struck from behind and dropped on the top of him. At the same instant I heard the crash of Lord John's elephant-gun, and, looking up, saw one of the creatures with a broken wing struggling upon the ground, spitting and gurgling at us with a wide-opened beak and blood-shot, goggled eyes, like some devil in a medieval picture. Its comrades had flown higher at the sudden sound, and were circling above our heads.

"Now," cried Lord John, "now for our lives!"

We staggered through the brushwood, and even as we reached the trees the harpies were on us again. Summerlee was knocked down, but we tore him up and rushed among the trunks. Once there we were safe, for those huge wings had no space for their sweep beneath the branches. As we limped homeward, sadly mauled and discomfited, we saw them for a long time flying at a great height against the deep blue sky above our heads, soaring round and round, no bigger than wood-pigeons, with their eyes no doubt still following our progress. At last, however, as we reached the thicker woods they gave up the chase, and we saw them no more.

"A most interesting and convincing experience," said Challenger, as we halted beside the brook and he bathed a swollen knee. "We are exceptionally well informed, as to the habits of the enraged pterodactyl."

Summerlee was wiping the blood from a cut in his forehead, while I was tying up a nasty stab in the muscle of the neck. Lord John had the shoulder of his coat torn away, but the creature's teeth had only grazed the flesh.

"It is worth noting," Challenger continued, "that our young friend has received an undoubted stab, while Lord John's coat could only have been torn by a bite. In my own case, I was beaten about the head by their wings, so we have had a remarkable exhibition of their various methods of offence."

"It has been tough and go for our lives," said Lord John, gravely, "and I could not think of a more rotten sort of death than to be outed by such filthy vermin. I was sorry to fire my rifle, but, by Jove! there was no great choice."

"We should not be here if you hadn't," said I, with conviction. "It may do no harm," said he. "Among these woods there must be many loud cracks from splitting or falling trees which would be just like the sound of a gun. But now, if you are of my opinion, and one of the brass shells lay shredded into pieces beside it. Again the feeling of vague horror came upon our souls, and we gazed round with frightened eyes at the dark shadows which lay around us, in all of which some fearsome shape might be lurking. How good it was when we were hailed by the voice of Zambo, and going to the edge of the plateau, saw him sitting grinning at us upon the top of the opposite pinnacle.

"All well, Massa Challenger, all well!" he cried. "Me stay here. No fear. You always find me when you want."

His honest black face, and the immense view before us, which carried us halfway back to the affluent of the Amazon, helped us to remember that we really were upon this earth in the twentieth century, and had not by some magic been conveyed to some raw planet in its earliest and wildest state. How difficult it was to realize that the violet line upon the far horizon was well advanced to that great river upon which huge steamers ran, and folk talked of the small affairs of life, while we, marooned among the creatures of a bygone age, could but gaze towards it and yearn for all that it meant!

One other memory remains with me of this wonderful day, and with it I will close this letter. The two professors, their tempers aggravated, no doubt, by their injuries, had fallen out as to whether our assailants were of the genus pterodactylus or dimorphodon, and high words had ensued. To avoid their wrangling I moved some little way apart, and was seated smoking upon the trunk of a fallen tree, when Lord John strolled over in my direction.

"I say, Malone," said he, "do you remember that place where those beasts were?"

"Very clearly."

"A sort of volcanic pit, was it not?"

"Exactly," said I.

"Did you notice the soil?"

"Rocks."

"But round the water—where the reeds were?"

"It was a bluish soil. It looked like clay."

"Exactly. A volcanic tube full of blue clay."

"What of that?" I asked.

"Oh, nothing, nothing," said he, and strolled back to where the voices of the contending men of science rose in a prolonged duet, the high, strident note of Summerlee rising and falling to the sonorous bass of Challenger. I should have thought no more of Lord John's remark were it not that once again that night I heard him mutter to himself: "Blue clay—clay in a volcanic tube!" They were the last words I heard before I dropped into an exhausted sleep.

CHAPTER XI

"For once I was the Hero"

Lord John Roxton was right when he thought that some specially toxic quality might lie in the bite of the horrible creatures which had attacked us. On the morning after our first adventure upon the plateau, both Summerlee and I were in great pain and fever, while Challenger's knee was bruised that he could hardly limp.

Nobody Loves You

It is impossible to get anywhere if you are a crab. Nobody loves you. To be successful you must have a kindly, lovable disposition. You can not have this with an unhealthy liver and stomach. They don't go together. May's Wonderful Remedy has given complete and permanent results in thousands of such cases. Our advice to everyone troubled in this way, especially when accompanied with bloating in the stomach, is to try this remedy. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and relieves the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. At all druggists.

Helpful Hair Hints

A leading hair dresser says—"I have found nothing as good as Parisian Sage to make the hair wavy, soft and lustrous and to make it grow abundant and beautiful." Remember the name—Parisian Sage—best for the hair and scalp. It's guaranteed. Rowland's Pharmacy, Dixon and Rochelle and all druggists sell it.—Adv.

pastor, at 10:45, following the Communion. The Bible School's missionary offering of last Sunday has been held over in order to receive benediction from those compelled to be absent Children's Day. Let all members of the school remember that war has been declared on the hostile host known as "Summer Slump."

Helen Cleaver will be the C. E. leader at 6:30; topic: "Leadership: Its Price and Its Rewards." The evening sermon will be "My Brother's Duty and Mine."

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST

Music will be arranged by Mesdames Berryman and Barth. Mesdames Proctor and Barlow will act as ushers. An illustrated lecture "What of the Farmers' Church?" of the "Rural Church in U. S." will be given by the pastor. Many rural churches have closed in recent years. The lecture deals with this problem.

AMBOY BAPTIST CHURCH
Fred P. Harris, Pastor

Sunday school 10:00. We have arranged for all ages.

Morning Worship 11:00. Subject: "A Man Whose Religion Was a Bother to Him." This is the second of a series of sermons on Old Testament characters to be preached from this pulpit; there are seven more to follow. Get acquainted with the Old Testament and see its fulfillment in the new.

B. Y. P. U. 6:30.

Juniors 6:30. We were very much encouraged by the number of boys and girls who attended the Junior Society meeting last Sunday evening.

We are expecting to hear of big things being done in this department. Has your boy and girl been there yet? Unless they are attending elsewhere they are cordially invited to have a part in these good things every Sunday evening.

Evening service 7:30. The G. A. R. and the W. R. C. will be with us to help us observe this service as a "Flag Day Service." Fine music from a fine orchestra.

Choir practice at the church on Tuesday evening.

New York, June 12—(AP)—The twinkle of young baseball luminaries from the minors has brightened the play in the major leagues this year, but veteran stars are still shining.

Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker, Eddie Collins, Zach Wheat, Jacques Fournier and Ken Williams each hit hard and timely yesterday for victories.

Babe Ruth, with his first homer of the season, matched a similar clout by Speaker, in the New York Cleveland game, but Babe's swat was after the game had been sewed up by Tris. Two runners were aboard the bases when Tris banged the ball into the stands, and the three runs gave Cleveland a victory by 4-1.

of the Yanks for home run hitting honors, by getting his 15th four bagger of the season, defeated the Red Sox almost single handed for the Browns 9-7. In addition to the homer he made a double and two singles in five times at bat.

Wheat and Fournier saved the Robins from a shutout in their series with the Cardinals by lousy clouting in the seventh inning. Like Speaker and Williams, Fournier closed the rally with a four fly smash which settled the contest 7-5.

With a triple and two doubles Ty Cobb led the Detroit on a batting rampage which the champion Senators went down to defeat 7-4. Walter Johnson being driven from the mound.

The Mack men were tripped by Chicago 6-5. The Sox knocked Eddie Rinnel out of the box with a five run rally in the third.

Cincinnati ran its winning streak to seven straight by winning the fourth consecutive contest from the Phillies yesterday 8-3, while the Pirates got an even break in their series with the Braves by a parting volley of 15 hits which won 11 to 3.

The Chicago Cubs evened the series with the Giants, by winning 7-4 despite Gowdy's homer with one on base.

The Well Dressed Man

By BEAUNASH

Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

Would You Wear This? In simple reason, all styles cannot be either acceptable or becoming to all men. One's station in life and the character of one's associates must, in the last reckoning, settle the adoption or rejection of many a fashion. History, poetry and mythology are inseparably bound up with the helmet. It is redolent of romance, from the helmet of Perseus, which rendered the wearer invisible, and the double helmet of Mohamet, which wore a garlanded wreath, to that of the Knight of Henry, The Fourth, who "bare on his helmet the glove of his dear lady." Our own acquaintance with helmets is chiefly derived from the fact that the English polo player, contending for the International Cup, has given this type of headwear a vogue of sorts. However, the American sportsman is not a habitual helmet wearer. With him it seems to be too fanciful and far-fetched a fashion. Nevertheless, it has much in practicalness and everything in picturesque to commend it.

Unquestionably, there are some touch-and-go games, like tennis, to which the helmet is not suited. It would slip and blur the player's vision. Contrariwise, the helmet is a topping headpiece for golf and polo and it has been adopted, to some extent, for horseback, fishing, camping, boating and so on. Sheathed with khaki or cool white duck, it appears to deflect the sun's rays and its sloping brim fore-and-aft makes it agreeably spruce and shady.

Illustrated here is the sporting helmet of Madagascar straw. This looks heavy, but is amazingly light because of its braided construction. It has either the narrow band or the winding puggaree ribbon, plain or colored. The crown is ventilated by perforations, though these may be placed where crown and brim come together. Then, there are helmets of cork, Chinese pith, raffia and Japanese fibre, variously ventilated to allow a cooling current of air to circulate.

To be sure, the helmet is not a summer style for every man. However, it has a soldierly swank about it, an air of devil-may-care adventure, which sets it up in a niche reached by no other hat that the sportsman wears. Whether or not you should assume a helmet, rests between you and your mirror. Far off in the country, it is a very prepossessing style, one that the best-dressed men are adopting increasingly every season, because it gets away from the same old, tame old thing.

Is Today Your Birth Anniversary?

FRIDAY, JUNE 12—if today is your birthday, you have a strong religious nature, due to the influence of the zodiacal sign of Gemini, the twins, under which you are born. You are a Fundamentalist and vigorously oppose those who doubt the Bible story of the Virgin birth. In a controversy over evolution, you probably will line up with those who will oppose its teaching. But you will not be narrow in your every day dealings with your fellowmen and your life will have more happiness than sorrow. The chances are that you will not marry until after a long courtship and engagement.

Military Pictures in Palace for Hindenburg Berlin, June 11.—The paintings hung in the presidential palace at the request of the late President Ebert, fail to meet the fancy of the new chief executive.

Whereas Herr Ebert preferred landscapes and portraits, President Von Hindenburg wants military subjects. Therefore he has requested the director of the Prussian Museum to remove most of the paintings selected by his predecessor and substitute military scenes.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton © 1925 NEA SERVICE INC.

THE STORY SO FAR:

GLORIA GORDON, beautiful flapper, marries DICK GREGORY, a struggling lawyer. Her idea of marriage is fun and her clothes . . . but no work or children.

She refuses pointblank to do her own housework, and hires a maid. But Dick has to let the maid go, because he can't afford her wages. Gloria has swamped him with debts for her clothes and a new automobile.

She becomes infatuated with an out-of-work actor, STANLEY WATBURN. When he leaves town to go to New York, Gloria follows him. But he spurns her. Then she tries to find a job as a chorus girl and fails. It is then that Gloria realizes how lonely she is for Dick. But she is afraid to go home.

But at last she does go. Dick takes her back, but not as his wife. Gloria suspects that he is in love with his secretary, SUSAN BRIGGS. While Dick is out late one night, the house is robbed. Gloria is sure Dick spent the evening with Miss Briggs. But next morning she learns that he was at the home of DR. JOHN SEYMOUR, who had killed himself because of his wife's love affair with JIM CARREWE.

The breach between Gloria and Dick widens. Gloria learns that Miss Briggs is in love with him, and begs him to discharge her. He refuses. Finally Gloria makes up her mind to leave Dick. She goes home to her mother, who tells her to return to Dick.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

The doorbell rang loudly through the little house.

"That must be your Aunt Dorcas," said Mrs. Gordon. "She said she'd stop in for me on her way to the hospital to see Lulu's baby."

Gloria groaned.

Aunt Dorcas was a born gossip. She told everything she knew for the pure joy of seeing the look of surprise and interest dawn in her listeners' eyes.

"Now, Mother, please don't tell her anything about this trouble between Dick and me," Gloria begged. "If you do, it'll be all over town by dark!"

But she knew it was useless to ask her mother not to tell Aunt Dorcas anything. She was wax in the hands of Lulu's mother.

Aunt Dorcas was large and blond. She had the nose of a Roman senator, and the blue, inquiring eyes of a child. She turned one of her cheeks to Gloria to be kissed.

"Well, my dear," she said briskly. "Lulu beat you to it, having a baby. And she's a year younger than you are, at that!"

Gloria laughed. "She's been married for two years, though," she said. "And I haven't been."

"I should think you'd be furious with her for making you a grandmother at your age. . . only forty-four! And you don't look a minute over thirty-five, does she?"

Aunt Dorcas beamed.

"Wouldn't you like to come along with us to see the new baby, my dear?" she asked, flattered.

"I would. . . I'd love to," fibbed Gloria. "but I've got to go home."

She ran upstairs to get her hat and over-night bag.

"Been here all night?" Aunt Dorcas asked sharply. Her eyes were fixed on the little bag.

"No," Gloria answered reluctantly. She shot a warning look at her mother.

"Gloria and Dick had a little quarrel," Mrs. Gordon said blandly. "And I've been talking her into going home. 'Bear and forbear' I say. That's the only way to get along with a man, isn't it?"

Aunt Dorcas shook her head. "Well, I don't know whether it is or not," she replied. "I never did think much of this young Gregory. I may as well tell you I always thought he was something of a snob. . . and if I were Gloria I wouldn't take any back-chat from him! She's just as good as he is any day in the week!"

"I haven't taken any back-chat from him," said Gloria. "The whole thing's been my own fault. . . And it isn't anything that matters, anyhow. A tempest in a teapot!"

She lifted the red-hot pan from the stove in her bare hands.

Her aunt snorted. "No, I guess nothing's the matter when you pack up and come home," she exclaimed. "I should say that something was very much the matter! . . . Well, are we ever going to start for the hospital, Libby?"

Mrs. Gordon hurried upstairs. "There's a pie I baked, all wrapped up for you on the pantry shelf. Gloria," she called downstairs. "Tell Dick I sent it to him."

Gloria tucked the pie carefully into one side of her bag. "I'd love to stay here and visit with you, Aunt," she said. "but I've just got to go home. . ."

"I think you're very foolish to go home. If you've quarreled with your husband make him come here after you!" Aunt Dorcas spoke her mind. "You take my advice. . . I'll bet your mother's been telling you to knuckle down and go home. That's the way she's been all her life. . . afraid to say 'Boo' to a goose! But what's it ever got her, eh? Nothing, so far as I can see!"

She tapped her foot angrily on the floor.

"She thinks she has a great deal," Gloria said softly. "And she and Dad really are happy in their way. . ."

She kissed her aunt on her florid cheek where a tiny network of veins was beginning to show. She drew a sigh of relief when she escaped, at last, from the house and from Aunt Dorcas.

ON her way home Gloria stopped in at a store and bought herself a house dress. It was a soft, pretty thing with frills around the neck and sleeves.

She had a sudden vision of herself in it, when Dick should come home that night. He would think that she had gone. . . and there she would be, with dinner ready, the table set, the house clean! Wouldn't he get the surprise of his life, thought Gloria, unless he had a heart of granite.

that certainly ought to melt him. . . And let's see, what would she have for dinner? Dick liked lamb chops and fresh peas. She'd have them.

she guessed. . . No, even Mother Gregory had said that it was quite a job to shell peas.

Gloria bought canned ones, and a can of beans. And she saw some potato salad in a delicatessen she passed. So she bought that, too. It would save her going to the bother of cooking potatoes. . .

Then there was the pie her mother had given her. Why, she wouldn't have anything to cook but the meat! Anybody could warm up canned vegetables.

"How long do you fry lamb chops?" Gloria asked the butcher as he wrapped them up for her.

"Bout fifteen minutes, lady," he said. "Depends on how you like 'em, rare or well done."

How did Dick like his meat cooked? . . . Gloria didn't know. Well, she guessed she'd take a chance and fry them slowly for twenty minutes.

At six o'clock that night she put them on the stove. The peas and beans were in their kettles. The potato salad was heaped high in a bowl on the dining-room table.

Gloria's heart swelled with honest pride as she looked around the house. It was in what she called perfect order. There was a roll of dust, like a gray mouse, here and there in a shadowy corner. . . but no one would notice that, she was sure.

She went upstairs to her room to put a little powder on her nose. She decided that she needed some more rouge on her cheeks. . . and more gloss on her fingernails.

SUDDENLY Gloria sniffed the air. . . What was that queer smell? . . . The meat! The chops were burning!

She flew down to the kitchen. It was filled with smoke. The sputtering fat in the pan had caught on fire. It was blazing.

"Here's where the house goes up in smoke!" Gloria thought with terror. She lifted the red-hot pan from the stove in her bare hands.

Then she ran out doors with it.

and threw it down on the grass. It hissed fiercely as she turned a spray of water from the garden hose on it.

Gloria was so excited that she did not hear Dick drive into the yard. It was only when she turned to go back to the house that she saw him watching her from the driveway.

"What have you been doing . . . having a bonfire?" he asked. Gloria burst into tears. She ran over to the car to show Dick how she had burned her hands.

"No," she sobbed. "I just burned up all the chops. . . and I'm all blistered, too! . . . Oh—oh, I meant to have such a good dinner, too. . ."

"I didn't expect to find you here at all," Dick said calmly. "You said you were going to leave me, last night, you know."

Gloria hung her head. "I know I did," she said in a tone so low that Dick divined rather than heard her words. "but I changed my mind."

Dick studied her for a moment with half-lowered lids. Gloria thought she even detected a gleam of amusement in his eyes.

"Well, never mind about that," he said. Run upstairs and get your hat, and I'll take you downtown for dinner. I'll wait here for you, Libby."

Gloria put the fire out under the vegetables on the stove, and took the potato salad away.

She made a paste of baking soda and water to smear on her burns. In the old days Dick would have done it for her, without doubt. He would have been filled with distress and pity. . . and he would probably have kissed the blistered hands.

Now he didn't seem to care. He was utterly indifferent to her. And the thought was all the harder to bear because Gloria knew that she had brought all this on herself. . . Dick's indifference and aloofness.

She had helped to build the wall that rose between them, mountain high. . .

SHE put on a sage green sports hat and went out to the automobile.

"Darn shame about your hands," Dick muttered as she got in beside him. Gloria said nothing.

"Where do you want to go to eat?" he asked.

Some demon in Gloria's brain prompted her answer. "Let's go to the restaurant where you and Miss Briggs eat," she said wickedly. "By the way, how is Miss Briggs behaving herself these days?"

"As usual . . . perfectly," Dick said.

"Hasn't she told you she loves you yet?" Gloria raised her eyebrows in feigned surprise. "I thought that would be the first thing she'd do!"

Dick didn't answer. But he drove the car down the street to a little restaurant.

It was a silent meal that they ate at the little corner table where the two of them and Susan Briggs had dined only a few days before.

The waiter had set their coffee down before them before either spoke.

"What's become of your rings?" Dick broke the silence that had hung, like a smoke-screen between them. "Your wedding ring and your diamond?"

Gloria felt herself reddened. "I sold them when I was in New York," she faltered. "I had to have the money."

Dick looked down at her hands, curiously, but said nothing.

"I hated to do it," Gloria went on, feeling that she ought to say something. "But I didn't have a dollar to pay my hotel bill. I don't suppose I'll ever have another diamond like the one in my engagement ring, will I?"

"Not from me," Dick answered shortly.

Gloria leaned across the table toward him. Her eyes were soft and bright with unshed tears. And her voice trembled when she spoke.

"What difference does it make that the rings are gone . . . when the marriage they stood for is gone?" she asked. "You don't love me any more."

BOOST IN PRICE OF RUBBER WILL HIT AUTO OWNERS

Arbitrary Ruling by Brit- ain to Cost Drivers of United States

Seventeen million American owners of passenger and freight motor cars will confront during the forthcoming fiscal year a loss of more than $500,000,000 because of an arbitrary British law controlling the export of crude rubber from English colonies into the United States.

During the last five weeks this measure, known as the Stevenson restriction act, has caused a boost in American rubber prices from approximately 18 cents to 74 cents on each of the 56,000,000 pounds of crude rubber consumed by the nation's automobile tire industry throughout that period, or $31,360,000.

At the same time the situation is steadily becoming more threatening. With tire manufacturing plants operating at capacity, the progressive depletion in rubber stocks and the rapidly advancing prices are threatening American rubber-using industries with wholesale curtailment in operations within the next three or four months.

Chicago manufacturers and brokers declared yesterday that the Stevenson act menaces the very existence of the United States tire industry. Seventy per cent of the world's rubber supply is consumed by this country and virtually all of it comes to America through the London clearing house.

During 1925 it is estimated that 400,000 tons of crude rubber will be required to fill the demands of American automobilists, and already the London stocks have fallen to 6,000 tons. On May 1, according to Department of Commerce reports, which predict a world shortage in three years, only 50,000 tons were available to manufacturers in the United States.

BLAMES BRITISH LAW.

"This British law—the Stevenson act—can be blamed for the present tight situation in the rubber industry as well as for the abandonment by British growers of tree planting, directly endangering the future supply," an authority said.

Manufacturers state that the only "workable" remedy at the present time is for American buyers to adopt a new purchasing policy, whereby orders shall be placed sufficiently far ahead to enable producers to operate at a higher level.

Estimates of America's rubber consumption for 1925 have been placed at 119 per cent of the 1924 figures. The stocks both in London and New York have been reduced. London stocks a few days ago amounted to 6,005 tons, compared with 7,567 the previous week. These have been drawn upon at the rate of 1,000 to 2,000 tons per week since the first of the year, when stocks were over 29,000 tons, against 60,000 tons at the beginning of 1924.

REDUCTION IN U. S.
Reduction of stocks in the hands of manufacturers and dealers in the United States was from 73,000 tons at the beginning of 1924 to 50,000 tons on May 1, 1925.

The Stevenson act permits exports of rubber into the United States at infrequent periods, each approximating 10 per cent of the year's crop.

It will have but slight effect on the markets, manufacturers assert, and it will not be until November 1 that the next release may be expected.

Imports into the United States during the first four months of this year amounted to 114,500 tons, as against 113,500 tons for the same period last year, the consumption during the same interval totaling 133,000 tons, against 108,000 a year ago. Consumption of the balance of the world was about 140,000 tons in 1924.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer

Washington — The Public Health Service claims great credit for medical science, on account of its success, during the last two or three decades, in stretching out the average human life longer and longer.

Individual humans like to keep on living, unquestionably. When one of them pays a doctor to keep him hanging on as long as possible, it assuredly is the doctor's business to do his best and earn his money. If he does a good job he's entitled to feel proud of it.

But as a broad general proposition, what's gained by prolonging the average human life? Ultimately people die anyway. What difference does it make, in eternity, to them or to anybody, at what average age they die?

This may sound like a ridiculous question, but when I put it up to the Public Health Service it kinda stumped 'em. Finally, "Well," they answered, over the telephone, "a human being's an asset to society, so it seems to us it follows, the longer he lives the more of an asset he is."

There was no use arguing with so illogical an outfit, so I dropped it. As we all know, however, even young husky human beings are assets only where society needs them, as in not too thickly populated countries.

And right now economists and biologists are worrying about world overcrowding. In China, already, it's a misfortune when a new average human being is born—a misfortune to him and a misfortune to the society he's born into.

Nobody but politicians and bankers need work up any enthusiasm over news that France and Italy have taken certain very short little steps toward "settlement" of the 6 billion and some odd—a mere matter of a couple of hundred million hardly counts in such transactions—dollars of war debts they owe the United States.

The very most France and Italy will or can do will be to say, "Yes, we owe this money," and give bonds for it.

The politicians thereupon will report to the country that they've accomplished something wonderful—as it really will be, to get France and Italy to go even that far—and ask to be re-elected on the strength of it.

And the bankers will have the bonds to unload on the public at about 30 millions profit for themselves.

But it isn't likely this generation of Americans, and perhaps not the next one, will see much of the actual money—even the interest.

"Not worth what it would cost to keep them afloat." This verdict by W. B. Mayo, Henry Ford's chief engineer, sums up the entire reason why the government has so much trouble in finding private owners who will agree to keep its war-built merchant ships in operation.

Nobody wants them even as a gift. And, as Mayo adds, they're "poor material" for the very junk man.

Heliotherapy, as the use of sunshine in treating sickness is called, is extremely valuable in treating certain kinds of tuberculosis as well as rickets and malnutrition. The best time of day for getting maximum benefits from the sun bath is between eleven and two, the closer to noon the better. At first care must be taken not to cause sunburn but after a preliminary course of short period baths, gradually increasing in length, a very young baby will profit by two half hours sun baths daily. Of course, the infant must have their eyes protected and for this reason a good plan is to let the mother or nurse hold it in the sunshine. This permits two to profit at once.

Suffered for 15 years with constipation— Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings relief in 3 weeks

Tried everything. Even operation. Only Kellogg's helped him.

Constipation paves the way to many harrowing diseases. But Mr. Williams' letter carries a message of cheer:

I have been using your ALL-BRAN for the past three weeks and it has done more for me than anything I have tried in the past fifteen years. . . . I was troubled with hemorrhoids for years. About 18 months ago I was operated on with very little relief. I tried everything under the sun. Then my wife suggested Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and I say truthfully that it is the only thing that ever gave me relief.

Yours truly,
L. T. WILLIAMS,

You Can Buy a Cow's Tail for Less Than the Cow But the Tail Isn't Much Good Unless You Own the Cow—Is It?

That's just the way with Farm Lighting Plants—Unless your lighting plant is powerful enough to light your barns, yards, outhouses as well as your home and still have excess power to pump your water, run your cream separator, milking machine, washing machine, any other chores around the farm it's just about as much good as a cow's tail would be.

INSTALL A

COLLIS

Light and Power Plant

And You'll Always Have Plenty of Light and Power

MORE THAN A LIGHT PLANT

In addition to the COLLIS being the most unique and compact Lighting Plant, it is also a complete POWER UNIT and can be operated as such without making any changes or adjustments whatever. This is accomplished through a pulley located on the flywheel end of the engine and by the unique construction of the generator, whereby the removal of one fuse stops all generation of electricity in the generator yet does not in any way affect lighting system or power circuit. You can use it to pump your water, run your washing machine, cream separator and milking machine, do your ironing and many other chores around the farm and still light your home, barns and yard.

A 1500 WATT PLANT OPERATED WITH OR WITHOUT BATTERIES

The Collis Light and Power Plant is not a toy but a real Light Plant that gives you 1500 Watts from the generator alone without taking anything from the battery or with the battery disconnected. This means that you can use at one time, 15-100 watt lamps, 30-60 watt lamps or 60-25 watt lamps direct from the generator.

The COLLIS will light your entire house including porches, yard, your barn, chicken house, and other outhouses and still have surplus power for other use. With the COLLIS you can run up to 1 1/2 H. P. Electric Motor, or two electric irons. It is possible with the Collis Light and Power Unit to run direct on the line without batteries in circuit.

Easy Payment Plan

Our "SMALL CASH PAYMENT BALANCE TO SUIT YOUR CONVENIENCE PLAN" enables you to enjoy all the comforts of your city neighbor while paying for your plant, and your payments can be so arranged that the POWER FEATURE of the COLLIS Plant will save you more than the entire cost of your complete Collis Light and Power Plant.
